

Spare 10 Minute A Day

Call President Obama Week 202-456-1111

Against Indefinite Detentions without Trial

To Mark Bill of Rights Day Dec 15

The NDAA bill passed by Congress is worse than PATRIOT ACT. This bill contains some of the most dangerous provisions we've ever seen: it would allow the government to imprison anyone suspected of an offense deemed "terrorism-related" indefinitely and without trial or charges—even US citizens.

The president, the Department of Defense, the FBI, and a bipartisan block of senators all oppose this bill. Why is Congress trying to give the government powers it doesn't even want?

This is America. We have rights, and we demand that our government respect and protect them.

What is the National Defense Authorization Act (NDAA)?

The National Defense Authorization Act (NDAA) is a bill passed by Congress in early December. It contains provisions that, if made law, would order the military to arrest, and indefinitely detain, even US citizens merely accused (but never proven) of involvement in terror-related crimes. Americans who care about liberty and freedom must take immediate action. Whether concerned about communities vulnerable to racial profiling in the war on terror, or the ideological profiling apparent in the FBI's investigation of dozens of peace & justice activists around the country, or simply preserving the right to trial or the longstanding prohibition on domestic military deployment, all Americans share a stake in this struggle.
